Seniors to enjoy annual holiday event

Upland Kiwanis sponsors Christmas-Hanukkah party

By Suzanne Sproul

This is one club event most Upland Kiwanis Club members don't miss.

"This is the highlight of the entire season for all the club members. If you've ever gone to one, you're hooked," said Tom Garner, club president.

"When you go to pick some of these people up and they tell you this is the first time they've been out of their homes for months, you realize how special this is," said Jerry Baker, club vice president and event chairman.

The festive occasion is the annual senior citizen Christmas-Hanukkah party. For the past 27 years, club members have invited seniors from throughout the West Valley to come and enjoy an evening full of holiday activities.

This year the club is expecting about 1,200 people.

"This started all those years ago as a way the Kiwanis Club could help the seniors in the area," said Herb Rosenweig, former past president.

"It was also done at the same time the Fun After Fifty Club got going. We had the first party at the Gardiner W. Spring Auditorium in Ontario. Ray Anderson was the president of the club then," said Leonard Mather, club historian.

And during the years, the party has grown. It's become a holiday tradition for many local senior citizens as well as club members.

"If we ever stopped having this party there would be 1,000 disappointed people. It's that simple," Rosenweig said.

Mather travels the same bus route each year. Many of the people remember him. "Some of them look forward to seeing me on the bus. I think that's amazing," he said.

The club has acquired 250 gifts that will be distributed randomly throughout the evening. "Everyone will get free candy and one out of four people will get a gift. The fun thing is that no one knows who will get a present," Rosenweig said.

Prizes also will be awarded in various categories including the oldest woman in attendance at the party and the grandparent with the most grandchildren. All surplus candy will be distributed to local nursing homes.

The club also will recognize its Senior Citizen of the Year award winner. Past recipients have included Nedra Volz, Harold "Tony" Zenz, Bea Riggs and Maggie Stewart.

Entertainers this year include the Pomona Community Band and the Fontana Slovene Button Box Club. And of course jolly old St. Nick will make an appearance.

After the party, club members will begin planning the event for next year.

"This is just one of the best things we do," Mather said.

In addition to the party, the club also sponsors soccer teams, Boy Scout Troop 601, work parties at the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center and an awards program at Upland High.

The party is planned Saturday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Upland High School auditorium. It's an open party. Everyone is invited.

Water officials not ready to panic over cut backs yet

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Don't panic ... at least not yet. That's how local water officials reacted to news the Northern California water supply will be cut back this year and to weather forecasters who predict a second dry winter in a row. So far, it appears that the Metropolitan Water District — which supplies half of Southern California's water — will only face a 1.5 percent drop in supplies, spokesman Jay Malinowski said.

Since the local Chino Basin Municipal Water District relies on MWD for a mere 10 to 20 percent of its supply, the effect would be minimal, General Manager Theo Nowak said.

If the loss is shared equally, Chino Basin's cut would add up to about 450 acre feet, he said. An acre foot is 326,000 gallons, enough to meet the needs of a family of five for one year.

"That's hardly worth talking about," Nowak said.

"Metropolitan Water District has more water stored in our basin for our use than that."

Nowak said that the last available report dated November 1986 shows more than 60,000 acre feet of MWD water was stored in the local basin.

"We get more fluctuations just with weather. I'm suggesting that that number's not big enough that we'd ever (miss) it," he said.

In addition, the basin still has reserves of its own to draw on, he said.

The state Department of Water Resources Board normally would divvy up the Northern California

R.C. enlists help in admissions tax fight

By Lee Peterson

Rancho Cucamonga will enlist the help of a powerful ally in its continued legal defense of the city's 10 percent admissions tax.

The city attorney of Los Angeles has agreed to stand behind Rancho Cucamonga's victory in an earlier lawsuit by Edwards Cinema seeking the repeal of the tariff.

The Los Angeles city attorney's office will issue a "friend of the court" brief, which is to present information applicable to Edwards' appeal of the decision.

The appellate court judge assigned the case will determine whether or not to accept Los Angeles' brief.

The tax, passed in 1983, requires that all establishments in the city charge an extra 10 percent which is forwarded to city coffers. Edwards, charging 50 cents on every ticket, contributes all but $25,000 of the $225,000 the city collects annually.

Newport Beach-based Edwards Cinema initiated the unsuccessful lawsuit soon after opening a six-screen theater on Foothill Boulevard late last year.

Edwards attorney Lawrence Davidson said the company owns some theaters in Los Angeles but does not operate those venues. He said he is not sure what effect the Los Angeles brief will have upon the appeal.

Rancho Cucamonga's city attorney said they went through a committee of the California League of Cities to request that other cities submit friends of the court briefs.

City Attorney Andrew Arczynski said San Francisco, Fresno and San Diego also may lend a bit of their legal muscle to Rancho Cucamonga.

He said the big cities are coming to the aid of Rancho Cucamonga because Edwards seems to be seeking an expansion of the ruling.

"This is not just an admissions tax case that has an impact in Rancho Cucamonga. It could have a severe impact on the entire state of California and I think the court needs to understand that," Arczynski said.

"I think Edwards' position is terrible. I think they are trying to expand some legal concepts to the point of absurdity," he added.

Los Angeles Deputy City Attorney Michael Klekner said

supply — through the State Water Project — but the decision has been delayed until Dec. 15, while the board works with the agencies needing water, Malinowski said.

MWD, which is entitled to half of the state project's supply, asked for 1.08 million acre feet this year, but will likely get only 1.06 million acre feet this year.

Still, the district will survive for the next couple of years because its other major source, the Colorado River, will not dry up in that time, Malinowski said.

MWD once was allotted 1.2 million acre feet from the river, but the completion of the Central Arizona Project reduced the allowance to 550,000 acre feet, he said. Since the Arizona project still is not up to capacity and there has been extra rainfall along the river, the district probably still will get the 1.2 million supply for 1988 and 1989, he said.

If the winters continue to be dry in California after the Colorado River supply shrinks, there could be trouble, Malinowski said.

"We're lucky. This year and next year look pretty good. After that it doesn't look good," he said.

Upland Council moving slowly on fee increases

By Candysse Miller

The Upland City Council directed the city attorney to draft a cost control ordinance to be voted on in its regular meeting this week, but agreed to leave some questions unanswered until a special city finance committee could be formed.

In a special adjourned meeting of the council last week, council members agreed to form a new committee which would study fees to be implemented under the plan.

The proposed five-member committee would consist of members nominated by each council member and sit for yearlong terms, studying current and proposed fees for city services and making recommendations on fee changes to the city council.

The chair of the committee would be appointed from the appointees by the mayor.

The city manager also would sit on the committee as a city representative.

Upland Mayor Richard G.

Anderson proposed creating the committee after negotiating with members of the Upland Chamber of Commerce, who have contested portions of the fee recuperation scheme.

The proposal for the cost control plan initially was drafted by the La Mirada consulting firm, Management Services Institute.

The firm created a report which detailed the costs and current fees levied for city services, and made suggestions on how the city could recoup as much as $5 million for services currently funded through the general fund.

"The problem with all that information (in the MSI report) is to conduct all the inquiries takes time and will continue to take more time than we've allotted it," Anderson said, explaining why he supported creating the financial review team.

Last week's meeting followed six months and as many public hearings on the report, including a negotiating session two weeks before that lasted until 1:30 a.m.

MSI recommended fees and assessments so that the city could recoup as much as 100 percent of the cost of providing city services, but members of the Upland Chamber of Commerce and council members balked at the suggestions.

As it was to be presented to the council on Monday, the ordinance will remove MSI's recommendations to recover percentages of costs. Instead, the city will implement specific fees, which will be updated as needed upon recommendations and surveys by the proposed committee.

The ordinance could be in effect as early as Jan. 21, after which the council will address a resolution introducing the new city fee structure.

The resolution will include fee plans already addressed in previous public hearings, but fees that have not yet been resolved will be set at figures recommended by MSI.

These will include inspection fees by fire officials and building inspectors, which members of a chamber committee claimed duplicated themselves.

The lone exception to the rule would be the fees and budget for the Parks and Recreation Department.

MSI suggested setting fees at "uniform levels" of 25 percent recuperation for youth sports and 75 percent for adult activities, but opponents argued that the fee levels would force senior citizens to pay exorbitant fees for use of the Upland Senior Center.

the brief is more than just an effort to help out Rancho Cucamonga. He said his city's legal department has an expertise in dealing not specifically with theaters' admissions taxes, but with first amendment challenges to city taxes.

Rancho Cucamonga will get recognition in GTE phone book

By Lee Peterson

After a few keystrokes on the computer, Alta Loma will cease to exist next spring.

Etiwanda will be but a human memory and Cucamonga will acquire a first name.

Rancho Cucamonga residents will no longer be able to cling to community names to escape the ten-year-old "Rancho" as far as the telephone company's computers are concerned.

The Rancho Cucamonga City Council voted Wednesday night to direct General Telephone to abolish the separate distinction of the three communities.

Local business leaders are pleased with the change, but some residents have begun turning in petitions protesting the zapping of the individual communities from the computer banks of GTE information.

When they voted to incorporate, voters in 1977 were told that the post office would allow them to continue using the community names. That policy has not changed.

But the independence has chafed up against modern technology.

People calling information asking for locations in Rancho Cucamonga often have been answered with "Rancho Cucamonga?" from information operators unfamiliar with the area, supporters of the change reported.

But conversely, phone company officials said the same

Gardiner Spring restoration fund seeking rebates

"Taxpayers in the state of California will be sent a rebate totaling $1.1 billion. Fifteen percent of every citizen's state taxes will be returned, thus a check up to $118 per taxpayer should be expected by the Christmas holidays. Taxpayers who do not want to accept the 'tax rebate' are invited to give toward the restoration project at the Gardiner W. Spring Auditorium," said Tony Zenz, restoration chairman.

"This auditorium was constructed 48 years ago by the Chaffey Joint Union High School District as a performing arts center for the West End," Zenz said. "During the past three years, funds have been raised throughout the West Valley in the Inland Empire in order to bring the auditorium facility up to present day building code and standards. Completion of this gigantic project is within a needed goal of $75,000."

Restoration work has included construction of new toilet facilities, building ramps for the handicapped, re-roofing the entire building, painting the building exterior, re-painting the entire zodiac ceiling, and refurbishing the Austin Theater Organ.

Among projects still needed for total completion are the purchase of a modern sound system, the erection of additional and modern stage lighting, plus facilities for box office.

The entire restoration program has been under the guidance and auspices of the Chaffey High School Alumni Association — a tax-free and exempt organization with all gifts tax-exempt, Zenz said.

He said tax rebate checks can be endorsed and sent to: Gardiner W. Spring Restoration, care of Alumni Association, 1245 N. Euclid Ave., Ontario, 91762.

situation will happen in reverse next year when someone asks for a John Smith in Alta Loma and is told that "city" does not exist on their files.

"I think it's going to create a really big problem," said Councilwoman Pamela Wright, the lone dissenter. Wright said she agreed in concept with the plan, but that it was too soon for the young city to force the issue.

Some residents felt never would be too soon to ax the historic names from the files.

"It's like cremation of a city because one day it's there and the next day it's not," said Janet Heath, a 19-year resident of Cucamonga.

City officials argued that the change was timely and necessary in light of the ten-year anniversary last month. Taking pride in the city and fostering economic growth were other

Senior holiday dinner

Amy Thompson and other volunteers are again planning the annual senior citizens' Christmas dinner in Montclair.

About 2,000 people are expected for the dinner Christmas day at Father Joseph Mackey Hall at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church on Central Avenue.

Food and gift donations are needed as well as volunteer help. To volunteer call 980-2563. Donations can be dropped off at the Pepperwood Apartments

LeRoy Boys' Home

The more than $25,000 raised at a recent celebrity dinner benefiting LeRoy Boys' Home in La Verne will be used as "seed" money for a community based foster home project, said LeRoy Executive Director Dan Hanlon.

"We've applied for state approval for the program which would involve our staff locating and training foster parents to care for boys who have progressed enough to leave our residential agency and live in the community. The service would also be available to help county agencies locate appropriate foster facilities. Our staff would monitor and continue to treat the boys in the foster homes," Hanlon said.

reasons tossed out by supporters.

City Manager Lauren Wasserman originally wrote a letter asking GTE to make the change in order to "de-emphasize" the separate communities and "emphasize" the singular Rancho Cucamonga.

"It's just a recognition that Rancho Cucamonga is a viable name... Ten years ago people laughed at it and now people are proud to live here," Wasserman said.

Supreme Court will take on cable TV case

By Lee Peterson

A case accepted recently by the Supreme Court could give local governments more control over cable television companies serving their cities.

While West Valley city officials said a favorable ruling could spell better reception, cable vendors doubt that additional regulation would have any positive effect.

In the Supreme Court case, the National League of Cities and the city of New York are challenging the Federal Communications Commission's sole power over the quality of signal produced by the cable firms which serve some 18,500 communities in the United States.

The cities argue that they should be able to enact those rules which will ensure better reception for the residents. The FCC, said National League attorney Cynthia Pols, should not have the preemptive power they now possess.

One local cable company officer allowed that the FCC has not vigorously regulated cable TV, but that in a region like the West Valley, the market acts as the regulator.

Darrell R. Bye, regional manager for DCA Cablevision, which serves Rancho Cucamonga, said cable firms have to provide a good signal or suffer financially.

Cable companies in the West Valley have areas which they serve exclusively, but Bye said residents still can put pressure to improve on companies by their decisions to subscribe or not.

"You have far too much competition to provide shoddy service," Bye said, noting the availability of broadcast signals and premium services like SelectTV.

Upland Assistant City Manager Mike Matlock said a ruling in favor of the National League of Cities would not have an effect in the short term, but in the long run it would allow the city to set higher standards of operation for cable firms seeking to extend franchise agreements.

Upland's current cable vendor, Comcast, formerly Group W, has not seen the same problems as the predecessor, Matlock said.

Matlock said in light of the city's experience with a cable TV firm which formerly operated in north Upland, such quality of reception standards would indeed be helpful to the city.
